

The Coosemans family of produce companies has clearly recognized, first-hand, the strain that the COVID-19 global pandemic has placed on the produce industry and its employees. We are committed to always placing the Customer first, while working earnestly to provide the utmost care to safeguard the integrity of our quality products. Through our best efforts to persevere through the pandemic, the Coosemans family of produce partners remain diligent in nurturing lasting relationships with our suppliers. We strive to maintain environmental responsibility, remain economically sustainable and continue to be value-added to our clients and the various communities we serve as growers, packers, wholesalers, exporters and retail merchandisers within the industry.
